

Anatomical Pathologist

LabPlus, Auckland District Health Board

An Anatomical Pathologist position is available at LabPlus, the Laboratory for the Auckland District Health Board (ADHB). This is a full-time, permanent, position commencing in November 2009. You will be working with a team of Anatomical Pathologists (twelve full-time equivalents) who provide a comprehensive surgical pathology and Cytopathology service. You will be expected to participate in routine anatomical pathology duties as well as an after hours roster to cover a subspecialty area.

ADHB provides acute and tertiary clinical services for the population of central Auckland, a tertiary referral service for the greater Auckland region, and a national transplant service.

ADHB has a strong linkage with the University of Auckland Faculty of Medical and Health Sciences, and all our hospitals are teaching hospitals. There are up to seven anatomical pathology registrars attached to the department and the laboratory is approved for training for the FRCPA.

You must be eligible for registration with the New Zealand Medical Council and have a higher qualification as a Specialist Pathologist such as FRCPA or equivalent. Applications from trainees in their final year will also be welcome. The terms of employment are according to the Senior Medical and Dental Officers Multi Employer Collective Agreement with the New Zealand District Health Boards.
